commissioned by pubcaster Rai. The series (6x50') is based on the novel by Ilaria Tuti with the same name, and "it's an original Italian Noir"- said Verdiana – as the main character police chief Teresa Battaglia is investigating brutal murders in a small community in the Friulian Dolomites, but also faces her early signs of Alzheimer. She is a strong woman, but at the same time she has no longer her forces. With the help of two inspectors, a veteran policeman and a young inspector, Teresa (Elena Sofia Ricci) will be able to find the killer and protect the community that is also affected by dark secrets and by cases of abused children.

"This is a story with a leading female character and topical themes that I am sure will also enchant the international audiences, because she is not a simple character but a courageous woman capable to go beyond her own fragilities as all women around the world can do," added Bixio.

"Yet We Fall Happy" ("Eppure cadiamo felici") is based on the novel by Enrico Galiano with the same name and it's a story of adolescence, complicated by the tumultuous life of a 16-year-old mother. The series (8x25') is a young adult drama on air by Raiplay, focused on the difficulties and daily problems of a teen forced to move to another city with his mother.

Verdiana Bixio will attend the LA Screenings at the Century Plaza Hotel at table #6 on May, 17-19, 2023.
